HEMEROCALLIS

GARDENERS generally are just beginning to realize the splendid part Hemerocallis can play in their plantings. They are in the class of Peonies and Iris. Once they are established, they give years of satisfaction and pleasure in the garden picture. In midsummer, when there are so few perennials to be depended upon for a wealth of bloom, Daylilies are a mass of lovely color and in hot dry weather when gardeners are apt to neglect their plants they give a splendid account of themselves. These are very important perennials and should be in every up-to-date collection.
